PERSONALITY AI FOR PROSPECTING

By Greg Skloot, President of Crystal
TABLE OF CONTENTS

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Section</th>
<th>Page</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>HOW PERSONALITY AFFECTS PROSPECTING</td>
<td>3</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>UNDERSTANDING PERSONALITY</td>
<td>5</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>IDENTIFYING PERSONALITY WITH CRYSTAL’S CHROME EXTENSION</td>
<td>9</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>ADAPTING YOUR COMMUNICATION STYLE</td>
<td>11</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Building the connection</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Handling objections</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>TURN PROSPECTS INTO CUSTOMERS</td>
<td>17</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
Intro

How Personality Affects Prospecting
It can be hard to effectively reach out to prospects if you don't know how to stand out from the crowd. Everyone gets so many sales messages and emails that it seems half the battle is in getting someone to open a message, read it, and respond. A new innovation in technology, known as Personality AI can help you overcome this issue by showing you the personality of your prospect before you reach out.

Our personality determines how we interpret the world: our natural likes, strengths, communication preferences, and more all impact how we see and understand others. When someone else communicates with us in our own natural style, we are more inclined to not only engage with them, but also like them. For example, those who are warm and compassionate tend to trust or value those who are also warm and compassionate, while they tend to be wary of someone who seems cold or direct.

---

Understanding a prospect's personality can help you leave a lasting impression on them.

---

By using Personality AI, you can easily understand and adapt your communication to best fit your prospect. Here’s a quick breakdown of how Personality AI works.
Section 1

Understanding Personality
Historically, the only way you would be able to fully understand someone’s personality is by either getting to know them really well, which takes lots of time and emotional intelligence or having them take a personality test. Both of these approaches require that you have an established relationship with the person, which doesn’t tend to work in the world of outreach communication since we are often trying to connect with new people who we have never spoken with before.

Thankfully, Personality AI unlocks another way to learn about someone’s personality without an assessment. We wrote about this in detail in another ebook titled, Personality AI (which you can download for free). This new technology analyzes publicly available information on websites like LinkedIn to predict someone’s personality, using artificial intelligence and machine learning. We built Crystal to harness Personality AI and enable anyone to identify personalities online to improve their communication and build stronger relationships, all based on the core principle of empathy.
Without getting too technical, when Crystal’s AI predicts personality, it uses a framework called DISC to classify personalities into a few categories that we refer to as D (dominance), I (influence), S (steadiness), and C (conscientiousness). Each of us has a primary DISC type in one of these categories and sometimes a secondary DISC type in another. To keep things simple, we separate these into easy-to-remember labels called Archetypes.

You can see them all on this graphic called the Personality Map:
Below is a breakdown of common personality traits within each of the categories in DISC.

D Personality Types: Captains, Drivers, Initiators, Architects
- Motivated by control over the future and personal authority
- Tend to prefer instant, concrete results and having an advantage over competition
- Communicate clearly and succinctly

I Personality Types: Influencer, Motivator, Encourager, Harmonizer
- Motivated by innovative, unique, creative ideas and excited by the future
- Tend to prefer building new relationships and experiences
- Communicate in a casual, expressive way

S Personality Types: Counselor, Supporter, Planner, Stabilizer
- Motivated by peace, safety, and others' wellbeing
- Tend to prefer security, reliability and trust
- Communicate in a friendly and genuine way

C Personality Types: Editor, Analyst, Skeptic, Questioner
- Motivated by logic, information, and problem solving
- Tend to prefer accurate information and quality solutions (quality over quantity)
- Communicate in a business-like, fact-based way

These differences are extremely important for your approach in every conversation with a customer. For example, someone who is a warm, people-oriented Supporter (S) is less likely to engage in a discussion about facts and data. They'd usually prefer to engage in more personal, get-to-know-you conversation. An Analyst (C), on the other hand, tends to enjoy learning more about specific, concrete information. By identifying someone’s personality type, we can learn how to best communicate with them. Crystal breaks this down for you when you analyze a prospect, so you don’t have to understand DISC to use it.
Section 2

Identifying Personality with Crystal’s Chrome Extension
When you’re reaching out to a prospect or preparing to meet with them for the first time, you can find their personality type by using Crystal’s Chrome Extension. The Chrome Extension is able to predict anyone’s personality type from their online footprint. One of the best ways to use it is on LinkedIn.

HOW TO USE CHROME EXTENSION IN LINKEDIN

Once you have the Chrome Extension installed, do the following:

1. In your Chrome browser, open LinkedIn

2. Navigate to someone’s profile

3. Click the Crystal Icon on the right side of the page that says “View Personality.”

4. View sidebar containing an overview of your contact’s personality

To see how you can use the Chrome Extension elsewhere, check out our Ultimate Guide to Crystal’s Chrome Extension.
Section 3

Adapting Your Communication Style
Once you know your prospect’s personality type, it becomes much easier to communicate with them. Everyone is different, but personality gives you a lens through which you can more easily understand your natural differences to communicate with them effectively.

BUILDING THE CONNECTION

Crystal will explain how exactly to do this for anyone you use the tool on, but here are some examples for the main types:

When communicating with D-types:

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>DO</th>
<th>DON’T</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>• Ask direct questions</td>
<td>• Be passive or reserved</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>• Ask them to choose the time and/or</td>
<td>• Let any call or meeting run past its’</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>place to meet</td>
<td>scheduled time</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>• Be clear and concise</td>
<td>• Include too much detail</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Assertive, dominant D-types appreciate getting right to the point of the conversation. You should be prepared to confidently state your case with D-types, even when reaching out. It’s important to stay away from unrelated small-talk.
Energetic, optimistic I-types may enjoy connecting in-person or through a call, rather than via email. Their warm, social nature helps them feel comfortable establishing more personal connections. Try engaging them in casual conversation or sharing an interesting story.

When communicating with I-types:

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>DO</th>
<th>DON’T</th>
</tr>
</thead>
</table>
| • Ask for a more immediate meeting or call time
• Remain enthusiastic and empathetic
• Call them to action | • Speak in a serious tone
• Involve too many details
• Focus on facts and figures |

Patient, thoughtful S-types are likely to appreciate it when others take the time to get to know them on a more personal level. Avoid being overly aggressive in reaching out or pitching to an S-type. Instead, be prepared to share more about your life outside of work, as well.

When communicating with S-types:

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>DO</th>
<th>DON’T</th>
</tr>
</thead>
</table>
| • Thank them for their time
• Maintain a warm tone
• Include information about warranties, returns, or refunds | • Be blunt or forceful
• Require immediate decision
• Disregard their feelings |
Skeptical, curious C-types tend to seek plenty of evidence and data before trusting in a company or product. They may ask a lot of questions, so be prepared to answer thoroughly. It’s important to be upfront and honest with C-types, otherwise, you will likely lose their trust.

By making a good impression in your initial connection or pitch with a prospect, you’re more likely to establish a business relationship that helps them feel more comfortable purchasing your product or service.

Communicating in the correct style with each prospect will help enforce their confidence in you.

When communicating with C-types:

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>DO</th>
<th>DON’T</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>• Provide concrete figures to support your claims</td>
<td>• Interrupt or change the subject</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>• Maintain a business-like tone</td>
<td>• Involve unnecessary small-talk</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>• Communicate the most important details early on</td>
<td>• Rush through the point too quickly</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
HANDLING OBJECTIONS

Even if you’re able to make strong connections, you’ll likely still encounter objections regularly. People object for many different reasons: stress, skepticism, indecision and more. To help guide prospects past their objections, it’s important to be aware of why they might be raising them in the first place.

D-types tend to be direct and confident, so they are likely to share concerns about things like whether they have control over the administration, flexibility in the contract, and if they are hidden costs in the long-term. To close the deal, you need to be able to confidently offer solutions to their objections—allow them to have some control over implementation of the product and be open and clear about the contract’s flexibility and the complete price-breakdown.

I-types may be concerned with missing features of the product, the influence it may have on the product roadmap, and a lack of social proof. You can negotiate these problems by remaining optimistic and eager, sharing compelling stories about how other clients have used or enjoyed the product, and relating your product to a growing social trend. By doing so, you will allow I-types to feel more secure in what you’re offering.
S-types want to be sure they’re making the right decision. They might raise concerns about your company not being big enough, the product not having enough case studies or positive, proven data, and a lack of opportunity to change their minds. Help relieve their worries by allowing them to fully share their concerns, offering specific evidence of your product’s capabilities, giving them time to consider their options, and offering a potential warranty or refund. By helping S-types feel safe and secure in their decision, you’re more likely to close the deal.

C-types may raise concerns about the security of the product, the ease of rolling it out, or the overall cost breakdown. You should be prepared to thoroughly address these problems with evidence. Focus on building a plan to ensure tight security and easily introduce or implement the product; bring in plenty outside data to support any claims.

When you take the time to carefully address your prospect’s objections in a way that works for their personality type, you’re more likely to ensure they will purchase your product or service and feel confident in their decision.
When prospecting is a major part of your job, it's important to know how to do it well. Personality AI is the key to efficiently starting and building strong business relationships. Adapting your communication based on your prospect’s personality will help you reach them more effectively so you can create lasting connections and build a solid clientele or customer base.
Before Crystal, I was flying blind

Give your sales team personality insights and advice for their clients, so they can navigate every meeting with confidence.

LIKES COMPETITIVE ADVANTAGE
LIKES STABILITY AND SECURITY

TRY IT TODAY
Click to learn more

UPGRADE TO PREMIUM